
BROUGHTON CREEK.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.)

It is with deep sorrow and regret that I have to record the death of one of our most respected settlers here. Ireland had no more loving son than the late Mr. John O'Neill Goulding, who, young as he was, 38 years, suffered like a noble patriot in her cause. He was one of the well-known band of patriots who with Flood and others were sent to Western Australia some 18 years ago. After passing through that criminal test, and upon receiving free pardon from the British authorities, he settled amongst us in the South coast district, and, by his generous acts and really Catholic instincts, made himself one of the greatest favourites we ever had amongst us. He was son-in-law to Mr. John Feehan, of Gerrin-gong, so well and favourably known in this district for nearly half a century, and an uncompromising friend to Ireland, and her just rights.
